

PROCLAMATION

By the Governor of Alabama

WHEREAS, Intergeneration Day is a special day set aside the First Sunday of October. The Fourth Annual National Intergeneration Day will take place on October 5, 2003, culminating Intergeneration Activities Week, starting on September 29, 2003; and

WHEREAS, there are few opportunities for meaningful age-integrated relationships, with children in childcare or schools, adults in the workplace, and older adults in care centers and senior living residences; and

WHEREAS, individual, family and community success will rise through an ongoing effort to relate and share ideas, values and experiences with people from different generations; and

WHEREAS, our youth and elders benefit from contact with each other, as isolation and generational fear are reduced; and

WHEREAS, culture, history, traditions and values are transferred from one generation to the next when meaningful contact exists between young and old; and

WHEREAS, Intergeneration Day brings together people of different backgrounds and ages together in celebration of the many generations of our citizens; and

WHEREAS, Intergeneration Foundation, is a nonprofit 500(c)(3) public charity committed to promoting Intergeneration Day/Activities Week; and

WHEREAS, citizens of Alabama are encouraged to reach out to people of other generations through letters, phone calls, and activities in their communities;

NOW, THEREFORE, I, Bob Riley, Governor of the State of Alabama, do hereby proclaim, October 5, 2003, as in the State of Alabama.

Given Under My Hand and the Great Seal of the Office of the Governor at the State Capitol in the City of Montgomery on the 15th day of September 2003.

Governor Bob Riley

STATE OF ALASKA

Executive Proclamation by Tony Knowles, Governor

The first annual National Intergeneration Day will take place October 1, 2000. During this time everyone is urged to reach out to other generations.

The Intergeneration Foundation, a nonprofit charity, is committed to promoting Intergeneration Day through a variety of means, such as workshops, symposiums, seminars, lectures, and speeches.

The theme for this year's Intergeneration Day is "Connecting generations through communication, education, and celebration."

NOW, THEREFORE, I, Tony Knowles, Governor of the State of Alaska, do hereby proclaim October 1, 2000, as:

Intergeneration Day

in Alaska, and encourage all residents to reach out to other generations.

DATED: September 19, 2000

PROCLAMATION

TO ALL TO WHOM THESE PRESENTS COME - GREETINGS:

WHEREAS: The Intergeneration Foundation, a nonprofit public charity, promotes Intergeneration Day, the first Sunday of October, to bring together people of all ages to improve intergenerational relationships by connecting family members through communication, celebration, and education; and

WHEREAS: The fact that life expectancy is increasing and that there are more Americans over age 65 has led to an upsurge in interaction between generations, and the wisdom of the old and the enthusiasm of the young must be exchanged to avoid mistakes of the past and to embrace opportunities in the future; and

WHEREAS: Older adults play a significant role in the lives of younger generations by promoting the development of strong and healthy families through intergenerational connections. Through these connections, experiences are shared and opportunities exist for younger generations to learn from older generations, who fill some of the gaps in our mobile society, and provide a link to family heritage and traditions; and

WHEREAS: Creating an age-integrated community leads to a healthy community, where the strengths of one generation meet the needs of another. All generations grow in an appreciation for cultural heritages, traditions, histories, and values; and

WHEREAS: Our older generations remain an important source of knowledge and stability in American families, helping us to understand the past and encouraging us to hope for the future. By preserving and strengthening the values families hold dear—compassion, generosity, responsibility, and tradition—relationships between generations contribute to the happiness and well-being of young and old alike;

NOW, THEREFORE, I, MIKE BEEBE, Governor of the State of Arkansas, by virtue of the authority vested in me by the laws of the State of Arkansas, do hereby proclaim October 3, 2010, as:

across the State, and I encourage my fellow citizens to recognize the invaluable role grandparents play in the lives of countless families.

IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Great Seal of the State of Arkansas to be affixed this 23rd day of July, in the year of our Lord 2010.

Governor

STATE OF DELAWARE
OFFICE OF THE GOVERNOR

STATEMENT IN OBSERVANCE OF
INTERGENERATIONAL DAY

Whereas, National Intergeneration Day will be celebrated throughout the United States on October 5, 2003, the first Sunday in October; and

Whereas, the interdependence of the youth and older citizens of Delaware is vital to our very existence and continuity; and

Whereas, Delaware Health and Social Services' Division of Services for Aging and Adults with Physical Disabilities acknowledges the importance of intergeneration through its Joining Generations program; and

Whereas, through Joining Generations, grandparents and older relatives who are raising the children of others find strength and direction through the Family Circles support and education groups throughout the state; and

Whereas, Joining Generations supports these caregivers through its Summer and Holiday Camp Respite program, in partnership with the YMCA of Delaware; and

Whereas, these caregivers can partake of respite opportunities through the Grand Time Off program administered by The Family & Workplace Connection; and

Whereas, by supporting the older relative caregivers, Joining Generations enriches the lives of the children in their care,

Now, Therefore, We, Ruth Ann Minner, Governor, and John C. Carney, Jr., Lieutenant Governor, do hereby declare October 5, 2003, in the State of Delaware, and urge all Delawareans to support these programs and work toward intergenerational cooperation and understanding.

INTERGENERATIONAL DAY

STATE OF TEXAS
OFFICE OF THE GOVERNOR

Texas is a diverse state, made up of people of many different cultures and walks of life. One aspect that defines, but need not divide, us all is age. Whether 10 years old or 100, Texans of all ages can come together to celebrate their common interests and goals.

Each October, an awareness campaign is conducted to promote increased interaction between generations and respectful discussion of age-related issues.

At this time, I encourage all Texans to reach out to family members, friends and neighbors of all ages and recognize that Texas is stronger when it is united.

Therefore, I, Rick Perry, Governor of Texas, do hereby proclaim October 2012 to be in Texas, and urge the appropriate recognition whereof.

Intergeneration Month

In official recognition whereof,
I hereby affix my signature this the 10th day of October, 2012.

Rick Perry
Governor of Texas

CERTIFICATE of RECOGNITION

Proclamation

by Governor Joe Manchin III

- Whereas, Intergeneration Day is a special day set aside the first Sunday of October and the Eighth Annual Worldwide Celebration of Intergeneration Day will take place on October 5, 2008; and,
- Whereas, there are few opportunities for meaningful age-integrated relationships, with children in childcare or schools, adults in the workplace, and older adults in care centers and senior living residents; and,
- Whereas, individual, family and community success will rise through an ongoing effort to relate and share ideas, values and experiences with people from different generations; and,
- Whereas, our youth and elders benefit from contact with each other as isolation and generational fear are reduced; and,
- Whereas, culture, history, traditions and values are transferred from one generation to the next when meaningful contact exists between young and old; and,
- Whereas, Intergeneration Day brings people of different backgrounds and ages together to celebrate many generations of citizens; and,
- Whereas, Intergeneration Foundation is a non-profit 501(c)(3) public charity and is committed to promoting Intergeneration Day; and,
- Whereas, citizens of West Virginia are encouraged to reach out to people of other generations through letters, phone calls and activities in their communities,

Now, Therefore, Be it Resolved that I, Joe Manchin III, Governor of the Great State of West Virginia, do hereby proclaim October 5, 2008, as: in the Mountain State and encourage all citizens to join me in this observance.

Intergeneration Day

In Witness Whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Great Seal of the State of West Virginia to be affixed.

Done at the Capitol, City of Charleston, State of West Virginia, this the Twenty-ninth day of September, in the year of our Lord, Two Thousand Eight, and in the One Hundred Forty-sixth year of the State.
